INTRODUCTION

For Gränges it is essential that irregularities that may seriously harm our business or employees comes to light. As a complement to our open corporate climate, we have a Whistleblower Function.

The purpose of the function is to provide a channel where events or circumstances can be reported anonymously without the whistleblower having to fear retaliation. It is our hope that any irregularities can quickly be uncovered and remedied before the underlying causes grow and become unmanageable.

This document describes how Gränges' Whistleblower Function works in practice.

AIM

The purpose of the Whistleblower Function is to provide a channel where events or circumstances can be reported anonymously. This aims to ensure:

- That employees and other stakeholders inform Gränges of serious improprieties within the group.
- That information submitted is handled correctly in line with applicable legislation and regulation.
- That each person who informs Gränges in good faith is protected from having his or her identity revealed, or any other negative consequences.

WHAT CAN BE REPORTED?

All types of irregularities can be reported through the Whistleblower Function. However, the intention is that reports be based on concrete suspicions, and that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the information provided is accurate and based on first-hand information. It is not however necessary to have evidence to support the suspicion.

QUALIFIED AND NON-QUALIFIED REPORTS

Even though all types of irregularities can be reported through the Whistleblower Function, there are laws governing its use. The Whistleblower Function will separate qualified from non-qualified reports.

For a report to be considered qualified, the concern must be related to Gränges' own activities. It must also be related to misconduct that is:

- In the public interest
- In certain cases, breaches of legislation in designated areas

Misconduct that is in the public interest typically affects the general public to a wider extent, for example financial crime such as bribery and corruption, environmental crime, serious forms of discrimination or misconduct that present an imminent risk to people's lives and health, counterfeiting, accounting offences and other infringements of accounting and tax legislation.

Infringement of legislation in the following areas may be considered to constitute circumstances entailing that a report is considered to be qualified – even if this cannot be deemed to be in the public interest:

- Competition rules
- Consumer protection
- Corporate tax rules
- Documents concerning the EU's financial interests
- Environmental protection
- Feed safety and animal health and well-being
- Financial services, products and markets
- Financing of terrorism
- Food safety
- Network and information security
- Prevention of money laundering
- Product compliance
- Product safety
- Protection of private life and personal data
- Public health
- Public procurement
- Radiation safety and nuclear safety
- Transport safety

When a report is registered, Gränges' external party carries out an initial investigation to judge whether the information submitted complies with the above conditions and recommends to the Whistleblower Committee how to proceed. The Whistleblower Committee then decides whether the report is qualified or non-qualified.

Qualified reports

Qualified reports are investigated by the Whistleblowing Committee with support from the external advisor and reported to the Chairperson of the Audit Committee. The conclusion of the investigation, including any actions taken, is decided jointly by the Chairperson of the Audit Committee and the Whistleblower Committee. A summary of the whistleblowing cases are at least once a year reported to the Board of Directors.

Non-qualified reports

Non-qualified reports are referred to each region's whistleblowing representative for follow-up.

HOW CAN OTHER CONCERNS BE REPORTED?

Private concerns such as dissatisfaction with how the business is run, leadership, pay or other HR matters, are less likely to be considered qualified through the Whistleblower Function. The same applies to working environment issues that are not of a very serious nature.

We recommend Gränges' employees that concerns other than those described in the previous section are reported directly to local management, a relevant functional group in their region or at Gränges Group functions in line with the reporting channels described in Gränges' Code of Conduct.

WHO CAN REPORT?

Anyone who suspects circumstances that conflict with the law, regulations, policies, or guidelines and which seriously concern the company, or its employees can make a report.

The Whistleblower Function can be used by employees (irrespective of employment form) at all Gränges' companies. Customers, suppliers, partners, and other stakeholders can also use the system.

HOW CAN A REPORT BE MADE?

Gränges' use an external Whistleblower Function named Trumpet, which is operated by the external and independent company, Whitepaper Advisors. The function can be reached, through the following link: <https://granges.trumpet-whistleblowing.eu/>.

When you are connected to the Whistleblower Function – through the link above - you can opt to make your report through a web-based form, through a telephone call or by writing and sending a letter. A report can be filed 24/7. The report will always be treated with maintained anonymity and with strict confidentiality.

If you would like to report a case by phone; call +46 20 10 30 91 or 800 4455223 for US employees (24/7-availability).

If you would like to report a case by writing and sending a letter; send the letter to Whitepaper Advisors, PO Box 479, SE-201 24 Malmö, Sweden.

If you would like to file a report directly on the web-portal, connect through the link above and start the process by clicking "REPORT A CASE". Thereafter you will be guided through the entire process and on the portal, you will also find answers to the most frequently asked questions each step of the way. If you would like to be certain that no one is monitoring your activities you should use a private computer/laptop or cell phone and visit the Whistleblower Function from a network that you fully trust, for instance your home network if such is available.

To ensure your anonymity, the Whistleblower Function (and its reporting tool) is provided by an external and independent company. Your report will be encrypted and password protected. You never have to reveal your identity if you do not wish to. Using the system is also completely voluntary.

- You do not need evidence for your suspicions, but no accusations may be made with malicious intent or with the knowledge that the accusation is false.
- It is important that you describe all the facts of the matter, including the circumstances that you think may not be important.
- Please explain the reasons for your report as clearly as possible and attach all materials that may be relevant.

In addition to Gränges' Whistleblower Function, the Swedish government has appointed a number of authorities that, through external reporting channels, must receive, follow up and provide feedback on reports of misconduct within their designated area of responsibility. The full list of responsible authorities can be found in the regulation on the protection of persons reporting misconduct (2021:949), see link to List of Authorities.

WHO RECEIVES THE REPORT?

Gränges' Whistleblower Function is operated by the external and independent company Whitepaper Advisors, who provides the whistleblower reporting tool called Trumpet. All reports will be received and handled by the external company, which also will be able to assist Gränges in conducting investigations in conjunctions with the reports. Whitepaper Advisors as well as their partners have extensive experience from investigations and have furthermore global capacity should that be needed.

Whitepaper Advisors cooperates (or works in consultation) with Gränges' Whistleblower Committee, consisting of the Internal Audit Manager and SVP Sustainability. No details regarding the whistleblower will be disclosed unless you as the whistleblower have provided your consent.

All reported concerns are taken seriously and given fair and objective follow-up. Qualified whistleblower cases are handled by Gränges' Whistleblower Committee while other cases like violations against Gränges' Code of Conduct are transferred to appointed representatives within each region. All functions are required to maintain all information in the strictest confidence to ensure the integrity of the process. The appointed representatives for the respective regions are:

- Gränges Americas: General Counsel & Senior Vice President Human Resources
Gränges Americas
- Gränges Asia: HR VP Gränges Asia
- Gränges Finspång VP HR Gränges Finspång
- Gränges Konin: Director HR Gränges Konin

HOW IS FEEDBACK PROVIDED?

At the latest within two weeks after making your report you can log on again with your login and password to see any follow-up questions/comments from the investigators that have received your report. You can monitor your matter via granges.trumpet-whistleblowing.eu/ if you have noted the code that you receive when you register your report. You should log on regularly as the investigators may need to ask you supplementary questions, and in certain cases, to act as quickly as possible.

HOW IS THE WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTED?

Any person who reports any misconduct that is subject to this document is protected from reprisals, which means that a whistleblower or a related party may not suffer any negative consequences as a result of filing a whistleblower report. This protection is subject to the condition that the report was made in good faith, that the whistleblower had reasonable grounds to assume that the information concerning the misconduct was accurate, and that the report was made in one of the ways specified in this document. The protection also concerns colleagues, including consultant or agency employees who provide their assistance. If you experience reprisals as a consequence of misconduct reported by you or any other party, you must contact the HR department immediately. It should be noted that this protection does not prevent Gränges from taking action against you for other reasons than your whistleblower report.

Any person who reports misconduct subject to this policy will be protected against most normal confidentiality obligations, provided that it was necessary to provide the information in question in order to disclose the misconduct. This protection does not include surplus information that is not reasonably required to be disclosed in order to reveal the misconduct. The protection applies irrespective of whether the duty of confidentiality is stipulated by agreement or law but does not include qualified confidentiality obligations. Examples of qualified confidentiality obligations that are not covered by the exemption from liability include breaches of confidentiality obligations to protect national security interests or concerning defence-sector inventions. It should be noted that the protection from confidentiality obligations does not entail any right to disclose papers or documents.

It must be remembered that there is no protection from reprisals if a whistleblower report results in criminal liability.

In some cases, whistleblower protection may also be obtained if a whistleblower publishes information external about certain misconduct. However, legislation varies between countries and before publishing such information you are recommended to seek advice of a trade union representative or a legal advisor.

HOW IS PERSONAL DATA HANDLED? (SWEDISH DATA PROTECTION ACT AND GENERAL DATA PROTECTION REGULATION)

You can be totally anonymous when using the Whistleblower Function. Gränges takes great consideration of the protection of personal privacy. Below we have listed some key points about the Data Protection Act and the GDPR that can be useful for you to know.

Personal data

In all cases, Gränges is obligated to comply with the law regarding the processing of personal data. It is essential that anyone who provides information via the Whistleblower Function feels secure about doing so.

Initially, the information registered by the informant is registered. If there is an investigation, the information needed to investigate suspicions of irregularity will be registered, which primarily includes name, position, suspicion of irregularity and the circumstances on which the report is based. Information will then be obtained from the sources deemed necessary to investigate the irregularity.

Personal data is deleted three weeks after the case of reported irregularity has been closed

Anonymity

As whistleblower you choose either to provide your contact details or remain anonymous. All reports are taken seriously and investigated regardless. It facilitates for the continued work of our external investigators if we can contact you to obtain supplementary information. Your contact details will therefore be requested. But providing these details is completely voluntary.

No IP addresses are registered, and the system does not use cookies. If you are using a computer that is connected to Gränges, however, it may be stated on the Internet log that you have visited the website when you made your report. If you do not wish this information to be visible, you should use a computer which is not connected to Gränges' network.

All data communication and storage of personal data is encrypted to prevent it being distorted or becoming known to unauthorised persons.

Personal data control

Gränges AB and its respective subsidiaries where the person who is reported for an irregularity is employed is responsible for processing personal data in accordance with the law. Gränges is thereby the data controller for all personal data processed in the Whistleblower service.

The purpose of registering personal data

Personal data will only be used for investigation within the Whistleblower Function. In the section WHAT CAN BE REPORTED you can read about under which circumstances reports and information can be stored and processed through the system. As an employee you do not have to assess and judge whether the Whistleblower Function should be used. It is up to the Whistleblower Function and the Whistleblower Committee to judge which employees and/or representatives can be reported via this system. You can also read about which types of irregularities can be stored and processed.

If you report someone who does not belong to the appropriate category or if the irregularity is not serious enough to be handled within the Whistleblower Function, the matter will be closed and all personal data will be erased.

Access to the personal data

Personal data will only be used for investigative purposes by Gränges Whistleblower Committee and by the independent external company that has been commissioned to receive the report. The information is only available to people who work with the current investigation. In some cases, an independent IT consultant can be hired for forensic investigations. The investigation may be handed over to the police or another authority, for example the economic crime authority.

Extracts from registers

As a Whistleblower you have the right to receive, free of charge, information about the personal data on you that is registered in the Whistleblower service. Such a request for an extract from a register shall be made in writing and be signed. Please send it to Gränges AB, Box 5505, SE114 85 Stockholm, Sweden.

If any of the details are incorrect, incomplete or misleading you have the right to request that they be corrected.

For further information regarding registration and processing, please refer to the user conditions – Terms of use – accessed in the main menu to the left in the Whistleblower Function.
